

Actebis Peacock: Intel authorised Server Specialist Distributor

Successful participation in the Intel Server Specialist programme

Soest, 14 July 2008 – Actebis Peacock has added yet another seal of quality to its already numerous authorisations and certifications. Intel has named the Soest-based company a “Server Specialist Distributor”. Actebis Peacock has therefore joined a very select number of distribution partners recognised by the leading processor provider as having particular skills and competencies in providing support, sales and services for Intel-based servers.

This authorisation comes as the result of successful participation in the Intel Server Specialist programme. This programme provides selected partners with the know-how they need to support the specialist retail trade in the selection and application of Intel-based servers using a wide range of expert consultancy and support services. As an Intel authorised distributor, Actebis Peacock also has direct access to the most up-to-date Intel server technologies, components, services and support. The full product portfolio of processors, mainboards and network cards is also available via Actebis Peacock. “The specialist retail trade will benefit enormously as a result of this qualification from Intel,” comments Michael Thielers, Components team leader at Actebis Peacock. “We proved our credentials during an extremely tough selection process and can now offer the specialist trade expert all-round advice and support on all aspects of Intel-based servers.” Specialist trade partners can find out more by e-mailing intel@actebispeacock.de. Further information is also available at www.actebispeacock.de.
